

Getting to the Hello Scotland Office

Hello Scotland Office

Hello Scotland office is in Drumchapel, a residential area to the west of the city centre, on the road out to Loch Lomond.

Hello Scotland encourages you to travel by public transport, where possible, in line with our "Going Green with Hello" framework.

We are pleased to suggest these convenient options!

BY TRAIN

The nearest train station to the office is DRUMCHAPEL and there are 4 trains an hour from Glasgow City Centre (Two from Central and Two from Queen Street). The journey time is approx. 20 mins and if you call the office from Anniesland Station (2 stops before Drumchapel), one of the team will gladly come and meet you from the train!

BY BUS

You can get to us by bus however it is probably the slowest way from the city centre.

First Buses number 40 and number 20 will both bring you to Drumchapel but the journey time can be up to 45 mins.

Map your journey and estimate travel times here: <http://www.travelinescotland.com/welcome.do>

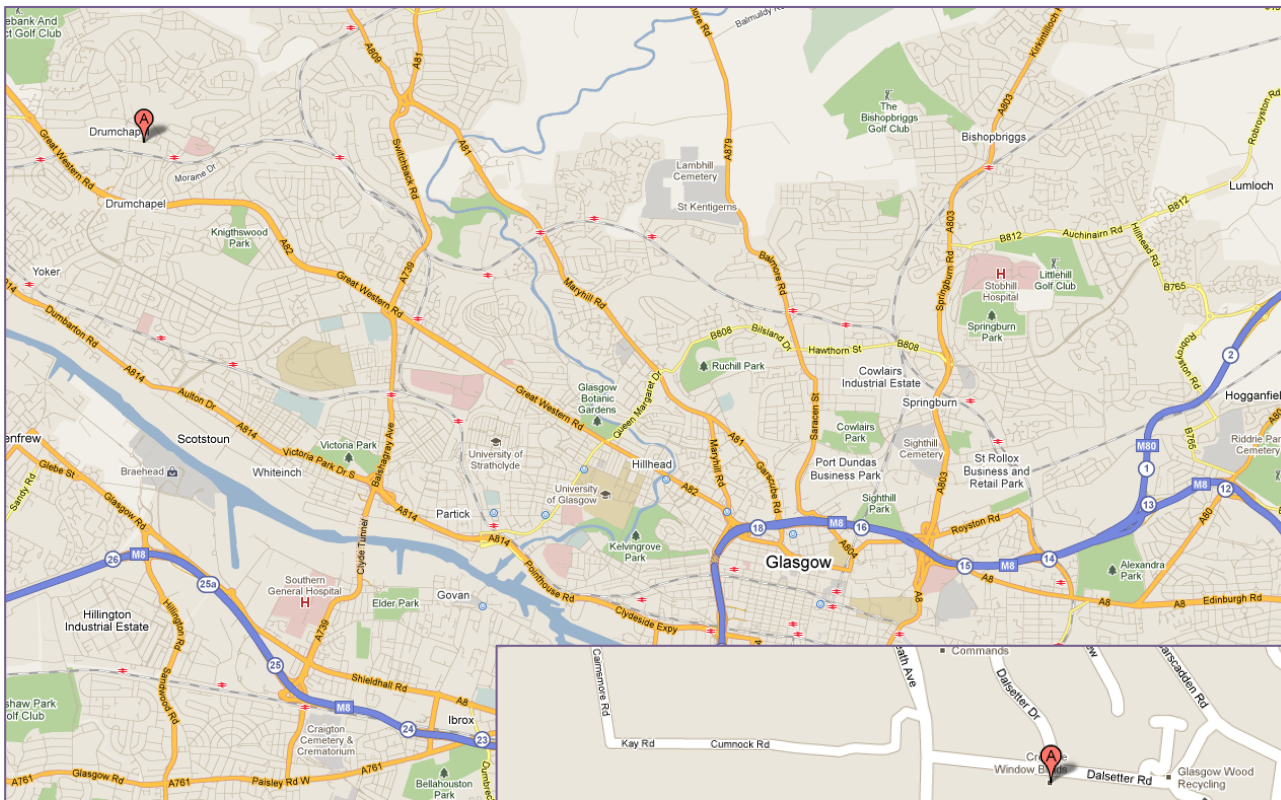

Should you need to drive, please be advised that we can be upto 45 minutes drive from the city centre.

DRIVING

The best way to get to our office from Glasgow city centre via Great Western Road. (A82 for Dumbarton)

- Once you are on Great Western Road, it's a straight road to us the whole way!!
- You will pass the top of Byres Road and the Botanic Gardens on your right, then you will pass One Devonshire Gardens on your left
- Continue on straight through Anniesland Cross, always following signs for Dumbarton
- Pass through Knightswood Cross, then pass "The Lincoln Pub" and Freddie's Food Club on your left
- A little bit further down, you will start to see signs for Drumchapel. When you pass the Police Station, you are taking the next slip road on the left (Marked Drumchapel and Yoker)
- Follow the slip road and take a left at the top
- Come straight through the traffic lights (Sainsbury's and the Great Western Retail Park is now on your left) and drive under the railway bridge
- After the Railway Bridge, take the first road on the right (Currently the building on the right is Creative Interiors and a Tattoo place)
- Park anywhere you can!! We are the Second door to the left of Salon 151!

If in doubt, just give us a call - not many people make it here the first time without phoning!!

'A' marks the spot of the Hello Scotland office!
